In most cases, affiliate and associate are used synonymously to describe a company with a parent company that only possesses a minority stake in the ownership of the company.

Subsidiary vs. Affiliate: What's the Difference?

In this example, the husband has control of Company A and the wife has significant influence over Company B. For Company A's financial statements, a close family member of the person who controls the company has significant influence over Company B and so the two companies are related by virtue of paragraphs 33.2(a)(i) and 33.2(b)(vii).
