With a foreword by David Riesman, author of The Lonely Crowd. Introducing a new term to the sociological lexicon: 'postemotionalism', Stjepan Mestrovic argues that the focus of postmodernism has been on knowledge and information, and he demonstrates how the emotions in mass industrial societies have been neglected to devastating effect.

Postemotional Society | SAGE Publications Ltd

The postemotional society values 'being nice' over the collective ability to be able to act on our emotions and to intervene to help others. Hence the capacity to be able to feel real deep emotions in an age which endlessly simulates sentiment through news bulletins, talk shows and soap operas is being progressively undermined.

Mestrovic: Postemotional Society

Mestrovic develops the concept of post-emotional society- one in which the development of mass culture has been hi-jacked by the masters of spin and rhetoric. Very close in flavour to the more overtly post-marxist work of Frederick Jameson's 'Postmodernism or the Cultural Logic of Late Capitalism'.

SAGE Books - Postemotional Society

In postemotional societies there has been a separation of emotion from action. The result is synthetic, manufactured emotions manipulated and standardized for mass consumption. In this paper I explore what it means to nurse in a 'postemotional society' and what impact this dulling of the emotions has had on a profession that locates 'care' as its central defining concept. My aim is to ...

Then, into the daylight stumbled the walking wounded and West London's café society was transformed into a giant makeshift emergency hospital as double-decker buses were used to ferry the injured to nearby St Mary's hospital. At first they had been taken to a Marks and Spencer store but, by 10 am, as more casualties arrived and the scale of the attacks became clearer, they were evacuated ...
