The Hairy Toe is about a woman who finds a hairy toe. However, she soon wishes she hadn't found it. Someone wants their hairy toe back and they won't take no for an answer. This book was written to be read aloud to capture the audience. It introduces children to some light, frightful humour.

The Hairy Toe by Daniel Postgate - Goodreads
Once there was an old woman who went out in the woods to dig up some roots to cook for dinner. She spotted something funny sticking out of the leaves and dug around until she uncovered a great big hairy toe. There was some good meat on that toe which would make a real tasty dinner, so the old woman put it in her basket and took it home.

Along about midnight, a cold wind started blowing in the tops of the trees around the old woman's house. A large black cloud crept over the moon, and from the woods, a hollow voice rumbled: "Hairy toe! Hairy toe! I want my hairy toe!" Inside the house, the old woman stirred uneasily in her bed, and nervously pulled the covers up over her ears.

An old man known for taking what isn't his picks up the wrong thing one Halloween night, and its owner wants it back.

One particularly stormy night, after one of Grandma''s wonderfully cooked meals, we gathered in the living room. There was a chill in the air, and Grandpa built a fire in the wood stove. I can remember how cozy it was to sit by the woodstove and the low light of the oil lamps. Grandpa said he had a story to tell me. Since my grandpa likes to tell scary stories, I scooted over by my grandma and prepared to listen as he began his story...

strange occurrences from times past. Set deep in the Pinelands and Ramapo Mountains, along the Atlantic coast, and in historic towns like Burlington and Springfield, the stories in this entertaining and compelling collection will have you looking over your shoulder again and again. New Jersey folklore traditions are kept alive in these expert retellings by master storyteller S. E. Schlosser and in artist Paul Hoffman's evocative illustrations. You'll meet ghosts and witches, hear things that go bump in the night, and feel an icy wind on the back of your neck on a warm summer evening. Whether read around the campfire on a dark and stormy night or from the backseat of the family van on the way to grandma's, this is a collection to treasure.

"I dreamed again of Fibblestax, sitting among his books, Peering into the candlelight with a calm, thoughtful look. For he's the one who gives a name to every single thing. If not for him we couldn't talk. Or read, or write, or sing..." So begins the delightful fable of Fibblestax, and how he came to be the one who names everything. He has to battle the tricky, red-faced Carr, a man who "gives terrible names to wonderful things." The mayor of their town gives them five things to name, and the final one, "that very strange feeling, a dreamy kind of cheer/the feeling that makes you feel so good when a special friend is near" stumps Carr. But, Fibblestax
