A random walk is the process by which randomly-moving objects wander away from where they started. The video below shows 7 black dots that start in one place randomly walking away. We will come back to this video when we know a little more about random walks. How can we describe this mathematically? The simplest random walk to understand is a 1-dimensional walk.

As much as the Random Walk is your chance to meet fellow Boothies and make friends, your state of mind will guide your experience a lot more than the people or the itinerary of the trip. Take some time to think – are you exhausted (burnt out?) from your full-time job and looking to take a break before you start the MBA?

Let's begin with one of the best-known and simplest simulations of motion—the random walk. Imagine you are standing in the middle of a balance beam. Every ten seconds, you flip a coin. Heads, take a step forward. Tails, take a step backward. This is a random walk—a path defined as a series of random steps.
