The World Café process reawakens our deep species memory of two fundamental beliefs about human life. First, we humans want to talk together about things that matter to us. In fact, this is what gives satisfaction and meaning to life. Second, as we talk together, we are able to access a greater wisdom that is found only in the collective.

an excerpt from

Abstract. World Cafwas developed originally in the 1990s as a method to harvest collective knowledge through discussion, conversation and shared listening (Brown, 2002). This case study considers its use as a revision tool for a final examination. Circulating focus groups (Ritch & Brennen, 2010) revealed lack of background reading or full immersion in the topic by individuals; early saturation of topics and over-confidence or sketchy knowledge resulting in incomplete information.

'Shared listening': using a World cafe approach as a ...

World Cafe is a facilitation technique that helps groups explore their hidden knowledge, connect the dots across different people, roles and experiences and utilise the wisdom of crowds.
